

The UX Strategy Canvas

The clever “how” between a business goal and a design team.

🎯 business goal 01

- Describe in detail what the business goal is — with its number and its deadline.
- Whose goal is it, and what happens if it is missed?

👥 stakeholders 02

- Who are the key decision makers involved in this goal?
- What are their needs, challenges and priorities?
- The better you understand them, the better you can create a strategy that makes sense to them and gathers momentum.

👤 who is our user? 03

- What are your users' needs, challenges and pain points?
- The deeper your knowledge of the target market, the more impactful the strategy will be.
- What do they do today instead of what you want them to do?

📊 insights, landscape and analytics 04

- What insights and data have you gathered about the landscape relevant to this goal?
- From these, what conclusion can you draw?
- How does this change how you will deliver the business goal?

📝 UX strategy 05

- This is the clever “how we will deliver on the business goal”.
- Brand the strategy so it fits your audience and gets more traction with stakeholders.
- One sentence a stakeholder could repeat in a board meeting.

🛡️ guiding principles 06

- What principles will guide how you implement the strategy?
- Are there considerations about your users, business rules, culture and ethics?
- What will you refuse to do, even if it would hit the number?

🔧 UX tactics 07

- What tactics could you employ to support delivery of the strategy?
- Brainstorm a few, then mark the two you would start on Monday.
- For each: what will you measure, and when will you know?
